			30, 2024. The presentation will include community engagement activities in the form of an artist reception, and public facing cultural workshops, discussions, and related programming. The work presented is a meditation on the artist's creative practice before, during, and after the Global pandemic, and Global uprising of 2020. Through photography, mixed media, video and poetry, the exhibition will chronicle the time period as witness but also grapple with changing perspectives in the aftermath of personal and universal upheaval.
Memorialize the Movement memorializethemovement.com	$184,780.00	Minneapolis	Memorialize the Movement (MTM) will embark on an archiving and conservation project of the 1,000+ plywood panels in our stewardship from the Minneapolis Uprising of 2020 and beyond. Since the murder of George Floyd, MTM has collected and preserved the protest plywood murals created by community members, artists, and protesters that displayed their anger, pain, grief, and hope. These murals were used to board up storefronts and businesses all across the Twin Cities. After years of storing, exhibiting, and protecting these murals, we now hope to set out on a large-scale archiving project that entails photographing, cataloging, and doing in-depth research on every mural in our collection.
Midtown Greenway Coalition midtowngreenway.org	$100,000.00	Minneapolis	Midtown Greenway Cultural Communities Murals Project will create a nearly six-mile-long outdoor art gallery of aerosol paintings along the historic Midtown Greenway in Minneapolis. The images will reflect and celebrate the beauty and diversity of the cultural communities who live, work, and play alongside the Greenway. Simultaneously, the project will uplift aerosol artists – a subculture who are frequently not recognized as legitimate artists – by giving voice to their experience, honoring their craft, and celebrating their culture.
Minneapolis Parks and Recreation Board minneapolisparks.org	$41,135.00	Saint Paul	This project will provide access to theater programs in schools, recreation centers, and other youth serving organizations. Asian Economic Development Association aeda-mn.org	$14,500.00	Saint Paul	On December 11, 2023 a dedicated Hmong-American activist and leader, Tou Ger Xiong, was kidnapped and killed in Colombia. Tou Ger Xiong has dedicated his life to building bridges across cultures, speaking out against injustices to marginalized communities, advocating for active civic engagement among communities of color, and bringing people together through laughter. This grant aims to provide a space for the community to come together to collectively mourn the loss of Tou Ger Xiong. The community vigil will be a place where Tou Ger's life and legacy can be remembered and celebrated with stories, music, videos, backdrops, artifacts to help the different community heal.
Central Area Neighborhood Development Organization (CANDO) thecentralneighborhood.com	$18,350.00	Minneapolis	The crisis is the consistent loss of life experienced in the Twin Cities due to gun violence, addiction and systemic oppression of marginalized people. Within the last few weeks, we've seen a Black police officer gunned down on the job and a non-verbal child found dead. The impact on the Black community is that we're hurting and normalizing the trauma because we see it so often. Many have become desensitized or seek substances to numb their pain. This project will use music, journaling and community engagement to provide an outlet for folks to process their grief in a creative way to cultivate real healing.
East Phillips Improvement Coalition (EPIC) eastphillips-epic.com	$17,650.00	Minneapolis	In May of 2023, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) conducted a surprise visit to Smith Foundry, located in the East Phillips neighborhood. The EPA found nine violations of the federal Clean Air Act, including emissions of PM 2.5 and lead at levels two times higher than the state allowed limits. Since the results of this report were uncovered, EPIC has been organizing with community members and a coalition of partners to galvanize the local vitriol in a productive way. The report confirmed the community's long-standing suspicions that the Foundry was polluting, harming, and even killing, East Phillips residents. After over a hundred years of environmental racism and social disregard, the Foundry is closing. Planned celebratory activities include: an opening ceremony with a Mexican-Indigenous dance troupe; a healthcare workshop which will provide 250 East Phillips households with free HEPA grade air filters; a community re-visioning activity in which community residents can work together to envision a greener, Juxtaposition Arts juxtapositionarts.org	$30,000.00	Minneapolis	North Minneapolis has been dealing with a surge in gun violence and the devastating effects of the opioid epidemic, post pandemic. Three months ago, a tragic incident occurred when a community member was murdered on the Emerson sidewalk, right in front of Juxtaposition Arts' (JXTA) campus. This was the first murder on our campus in 20 years, marking a significant and distressing moment for our community. This crisis is compounded by existing social and economic disparities, which include high levels of poverty, limited access to quality healthcare, food desert and education, and systemic inequities. As a vital community institution, JXTA recognizes the urgent need for initiatives that provide safe, healing spaces where individuals can grieve, heal, and come together as a community. In response to these crises, Juxtaposition Arts is committed to creating a dedicated healing space that addresses both immediate emotional needs and fosters long-term community resilience and recovery. JXTA's Environmental Design Lab looks to create a healing pavilion on our campus, in the heart of North Minneapolis to make space for public healing and reflection.

			oral histories, primary source photographs and testimonies, and local and indigenous mapping projects, and all are Minnesota-specific. The project intends to develop an estimated 10-20 more lesson plans centering Hmong, Karen, Somali, Oromo, as well as other cultures, providing vital resources for K-12 teachers and critical tools for supporting and affirming students from those communities.
Minors	$43,000.00	Saint Paul	This project includes a 60-page Hmong to English language book for 6th grade social studies students that includes a comprehensive photographic and narrative account of the refugee life experienced by tens of thousands of Minnesotans. These books will be made ready for publication (including 100 printed copies) and distributed to schools and organizations serving Minnesota Hmong communities.
Abdirizak Diis	$76,000.00	Minneapolis	This project supports a Somali ethnic studies curriculum for grades 9-12, with potential adaptations for middle school. Students will examine current issues facing Somali Americans, emphasizing their multifaceted identities. They will engage with community-based organizations and with Somali American leaders. The goal of this course is to preserve and celebrate Somali heritage, building from the contributions of Somali Americans in Minnesota.

2023-2025 ARTS & MUSIC EDUCATION GRANTS

Awardee	Award Amount	Location (City)	Project Overview
Fahan Organization	$23,540.00	St. Cloud	This project offers free, inclusive art education for elementary-aged children with special needs in the St. Cloud Area School District, including many Somali students. It consists of two six-week workshop series (Fall 2025 and Spring 2026) focused on creative expression through multisensory visual arts such as painting, collage, marbling, and sensory storybook creation. Children receive developmentally appropriate instruction designed to support communication, motor skills, emotional regulation, and joyful exploration. To ensure cultural and language accessibility, Somali-speaking teen aides will assist in the classroom. Through this initiative, Fahan Organization will create a joyful, inclusive space where children and their caregivers can build lasting memories through shared artistic experiences.
Community Action Center	$33,000.00	Northfield	This project will provide arts and music education scholarships and transportation assistance to low income and other underserved youth and adults in Rice County.
Alive & Kickin	$12,400.00	Minneapolis	This one-year pilot program expands the Seniors Rock Academy to offer inclusive music and performing arts education for seniors, focusing on low-income, diverse, and disabled adults. Funding will support six to nine workshops, during which music educators will guide participants in a range of activities including songwriting, vocal technique, and performance confidence. Classes will be held at accessible community locations. Participants will also have the opportunity to perform for intergenerational audiences and join the Senior Rock Ensemble for ongoing creative engagement.
Duluth Art Institute	$54,650.00	Duluth	This project will help the Duluth Art Institute (DAI) offer culturally specific classes in traditional craft and folk art. Workshops will be focused primarily on Anishinaabe and Sami (Indigenous people from Norway) traditions.
Theater Mu	$30,040.00	Saint Paul	Theater Mu will expand Mu Stories, a theater residency program for Asian American and underserved youth, to reach new school partners across the Twin Cities. This program will teach Asian American students basics on theater, self-expression, and stage performance with a goal of empowerment. Mu Stories introduces Asian American and BIPOC students to theater fundamentals, storytelling, and performance as tools for empowerment and self-expression.

2023-2025 ARTS & MUSIC EDUCATION GRANTS

Awardee	Award Amount	Location (City)	Project Overview
New Arab American Theater Works	$75,000.00	Minneapolis	New Arab American Theater Works will provide opportunities for SWANA (Southwest Asian/North African), BIPOC, and Muslim individuals in Minnesota to join two intensive arts learning experiences in Middle Eastern Percussion, and Performance Techniques for the Stage. Both of these classes will culminate in showcases for the community at large.
Healthy Community Initiative	$72,980.00	Northfield	This project will support youth living in rural Rice County towards no cost art and music exploration. The project will increase access to arts and music education, including music skills, visual arts, and performing arts avenues that are otherwise unavailable due to prohibitive factors like cost and transportation.
Planting People Growing Justice	$17,424.00	Saint Paul	Planting People Growing Justice Leadership Institute seeks support to provide 60 scholarships for BIPOC and low-income youth (up to age 25) in the Twin Cities to participate in creative writing workshops focused on diverse, culturally relevant children's books. These three-part workshops will teach the basics of writing fiction, non-fiction, and children's literature, led by experienced Black literary artists and writing coaches. The program aims to address the lack of diversity and representation in publishing by empowering young people to tell their own stories. Through storytelling, the project promotes healing, creativity, and cultural pride while building pathways for a more inclusive literary future in Minnesota.
StoryArk	$10,000.00	Minneapolis	StoryArk will bring an in-school creative writing program to South Washington County Schools—offering high-quality, identity-affirming arts education at no cost to the district or students. StoryArk will partner with the district to deliver the program directly within AVID (Advancement Via Individual Determination) high school classrooms, leveraging the district's strong AVID infrastructure to serve students from historically marginalized communities, including BIPOC and first-generation youth.
Zeitgeist Center for Arts & Community	$48,950.00	Duluth	This project includes launching nine new community-based filmmaking, theater, and improvisation classes throughout Northeast Minnesota (NE MN) and responds directly to the needs of rural communities, Indigenous community members, communities of color, and low-income families for accessible arts education opportunities that build life-long skills, amplify local stories, and nurture creative expression.
